A series where to be bold is to be brave

The first series of 'I came, I Saw, I Conquered', we dive into the world of Vignobels Berthier. Sancerre is the most recognizable appellation for French Sauvignon Blanc in the Loire Valley. The Sancerre wine region's rolling limestone hills and semi-continental climate deliver richly textured Sauvignon Blanc wines with ripe gooseberry aromas, bracing acidity, and flinty-smoke flavours. Clement & Florian's objective is to allow the potential of each terroir to be expressed to the maximum. The result is authentic wines, faithfully reflecting the terroir and expressing all the richness and complexity of their origin.

A series where to be bold is to be brave

In this series of 'I came, I Saw, I conquered', we dive into the world of La Crema. California Chardonnay is unique due to the state's diverse microclimates and soil types, which allow winemakers to produce a wide range of styles. From buttery and oak-aged to crisp and mineral-driven, the varietal showcases the versatility of the region. At its core, it's a wine of transparency, a mirror to terroir and the brushstrokes of a winemaker's technique. La Crema seeks to express the essence of the terroir in their wines, capturing the unique personality and flavour profile of their vineyards.

A series where to be bold is to be brave

In this series of 'I came, I Saw, I conquered', we dive into the world of Paolo Scavino. The Langhe Valley of Piedmont, where most Nebbiolo grows, typically has a long, mild autumn, with lots of fog (making it almost impossible for Piedmont outsiders to drive there at night). The lengthy, mild, foggy autumn is one of the secrets of Nebbiolo's success in this region, considering its very late ripening time. Paolo Scavino is an historical winery in the Barolo region, Their work is inspired by the love and respect they have for their territory and they pursue purity of expression, complexity and elegance for their wines
